Dear Ms. Neal:

Application for the Position of Junior Investment Analyst (Ref: IBCM20201001)

I am applying for the position of Junior Investment Analyst listed on your website. I was referred to this position by Mr Charles Zimmerman, an analyst in your company with whom I met and spoke at a job fair at The Chinese University of Hong Kong. I am currently a senior pursuing a Bachelor of Social Science in Economics and I will be graduating in July 2021. I believe that I am a great fit for the position because of my financial research experience and quantitative skills, a record of teamwork and leadership, and rich international background.

As a 2020 summer intern on the portfolio team of JPMorgan Chase, I researched numerous international companies utilizing SAS/STAT and MATLAB to build financial models and projections for leveraged buyouts and credit reviews, often working under time pressure. In addition to writing financial reports, I also created and delivered PowerPoint presentations about my team's research in bi-weekly meetings with fund managers. When performing these tasks, my proficiency in Spanish was put to good use analyzing data and financial media sources from Latin America. At the end of the summer, my market insights and investing abilities were put to the test and rewarded during the Intern Investment Competition. My own contributions and those of my talented teammates were recognized by the Chief Economist and fund managers who unanimously declared the team I led the winner of the contest.

Currently, serving as Treasurer of CUHK's Student Union, I oversee financial transactions for over 60 student organizations with a HK$900,000 budget. This role draws on my attention to detail and demonstrates my ability to succeed in a rigorous academic program while balancing multiple priorities. As someone who volunteers in a number of community activities, I am impressed by Credit Suisse's commitment to service projects such as supporting young talents and promoting the development of culture and sports in the territory.

Credit Suisse's client-centered philosophy and global market position and reputation combined with the opportunity to contribute to the community make this a great opportunity and I feel that my skills and experience make me a suitable candidate. I would very much welcome an interview to further discuss my qualifications and what I could add to your company at your convenience. Thank you very much for your time and consideration.

Yours sincerely,

Alex Chan
